Alan G. Ross brings over four decades of experience to his role as Of Counsel at Meyers Roman, where he continues to shape Ohio's labor law landscape with unparalleled depth and integrity. A fierce advocate and seasoned negotiator, Alan has managed more than 1,000 construction industry job site disputes and negotiated over 100 collective bargaining agreements across industries, including construction, manufacturing, nursing homes, and beer & wine distribution.

His legal career began in 1975 as a field attorney with the National Labor Relations Board, and he has since become a recognized authority in NLRB representation, unfair labor practices, union organizing, collective bargaining, and litigation under the Davis-Bacon Act, Ohio Prevailing Wage Law, NLRA, and FLSA.

Alan advises clients on:

- Labor relations and union organizing campaigns
- NLRB representation and unfair labor practice proceedings
- Collective bargaining agreement negotiation
- Prevailing wage compliance under state and federal laws
- Construction industry disputes
- Administrative and court litigation

His approach combines tenacity in the courtroom with strategic thinking at the negotiation table.
