Mark Sack offers a rare blend of legal expertise, educational insight, and international perspective. With a legal practice spanning estate planning, trust arrangements, contract law, and education-related advocacy, Mark helps individuals and organizations find targeted, strategic solutions to nuanced challenges.

He counsels clients on wealth transfer and succession planning, drafts and reviews agreements in both English and Hebrew, and provides guidance in disputes involving educational institutions and IDEA-related issues. His 30 years as a high school educator inform his compassionate, clear, and results-driven approach – especially in emotionally complex or bureaucratic matters.

Mark advises on:

- Estate planning – wills, powers of attorney, and complex trusts
- Contract drafting and review – bilingual agreements
- School-related disputes – IDEA issues, administrative conflicts
- Conflict resolution and strategic negotiation

His background in both law and education positions him as a trusted advocate, particularly in matters involving students, families, or institutional systems.

Professional and Civic Engagement
