Jonathan Sauline is a talented attorney in Meyers Roman's Civil and Commercial Litigation practice group, as well as the Criminal practice group. He represents individuals, businesses, and governmental entities in a wide range of legal disputes – including business conflicts and personal injury claims. With hands-on experience throughout every phase of litigation, Jonathan offers clients strong advocacy from pre-trial strategy through courtroom resolution. He provides a depth of experience to the Firm's criminal practice and is as comfortable in the courtroom as he is outside of it.

Jonathan delivers results through:

- Motion practice related to complex civil, commercial, and criminal issues
- Strategic discovery & evidence development
- Representation in mediations and trials
- Proactive litigation management with a focus on efficiency and client goals

Whether navigating a challenging dispute or preparing for trial, he brings diligence, clarity, and tactical insight to every case.

Professional and Civic Engagement:

- Member, LawPact®

When he's not practicing law, Jonathan enjoys performing improv comedy and spending time with family and friends.
