Alexander (“Alex”) M. Stewart is a rising attorney at Meyers Roman whose practice includes business formation and funding, real estate transactions, and trademarks. With a sharp eye for strategy and detail, Alex assists clients from startup inception through mergers and acquisitions, while also guiding them through disputes such as mechanic’s liens, landlord-tenant conflicts, and contract matters.

Alex’s legal research and drafting skills are top-tier, supported by awards and editorial distinction from Cleveland State University College of Law, where he graduated summa cum laude and served as Chief Publications Editor for the Cleveland State Law Review. His published work includes a widely discussed note on recreational marijuana policy reform in Ohio.

Alex advises clients on:

- Business and entity formation
- Real estate transactions and leasing
- Mergers & acquisitions
- Commercial and civil litigation
- Mechanic’s liens and landlord-tenant matters
- Transactional contract drafting and review
- Trademark review and renewal
